Special Collections Reading Room Closures and Book Orders

The Special Collections Reading Room (Radcliffe Science Library) and Duke Humfrey's Library (Old Bodleian) will close on Friday 19 September 2014 as services move across to the Weston Library. To facilitate the move, orders to both reading rooms will cease at 4pm on Thursday 18th September and new routes will re-open at 9am on Monday 29th September. During this period you may find that deliveries are restricted to certain reading rooms or that some items cannot be ordered at all. We apologise for the disruption in service and if you have any queries please email Specialcollections.enquiries@bodleian.ox.ac.uk.

For further information please see Moves of Special Collections to the Weston Library.

Shelfmark searches for Chinese material

There are currently problems with shelfmark searches for Chinese language materials. For better results use the new "in the shelfmark (Chinese records)" limit and change full-stops and slashes to a space. For example, to find "Chin.e.6817/5" search for "Chin e 6817 5".

Abstract: By diverting agricultural land away from food, feed, and livestock production, increased production of biofuel feedstock crops tend to drive up prices for agricultural commodities. But by how much? This question has been heavily debated in recent years following the food price crisis of 2007–2008. A systematic review of 121 studies that quantifies the impact of biofuel demand on agricultural commodity markets reveals that there is still considerable uncertainty around the exact magnitude of the price response. Increased demand for corn ethanol in the United States, the focus of the majority of studies, is estimated to have accounted for
