Bodleian Wi-Fi access is free to all members of the Bodleian Health Care Libraries within the Cairns Library at the John Radcliffe and the Knowledge Centre at the Old Road Campus Research Building.

When you are connected to Bodleian Wi-Fi you are connected to the University network and can access electronic resources (e.g., full-text e-journals) that the University of Oxford subscribes to, just like when you’re logged on to a University network PC.

You will need
- A valid and active University of Oxford card (blue with a seven-digit barcode) or a Bodleian Libraries card (orange with a seven-digit barcode)
- A password to go with your barcode number – this will be the same password you use to login to University network computers in the library
- A wireless-capable device

To connect to the Bodleian-Libraries wireless network
- Open the list of available networks and select Bodleian-Libraries from the list
- Open your web browser (e.g., Chrome, Internet Explorer, Firefox). You will be prompted to enter your seven-digit barcode number and your library password – this is the password you use to access the University PCs in the libraries.
- Once you have entered your details correctly you’ll be connected to the network

More information
- If you have forgotten your password you can ask a member of staff to reset it, or you can reset it yourself by going to https://register.bodleian.ox.ac.uk
- Please note that if you change your password you will not be able to use your new password to log in to the Wi-Fi for at least one minute
- There are several other Wi-Fi networks available in the library:
  - For University members, ‘OWL’ and ‘Eduroam’ can be accessed using your Remote Access Account username and password. For help with your username and password go to http://help.it.ox.ac.uk/network/remote/index
  - ‘OUH-Guest’ is available to all library users but only provides unencrypted internet access, and so should not be used for sensitive information
