Searching the database

The screenshot shows the Nexis UK search interface. At the top, there are tabs for 'Search' and 'Sources'. Below that, a navigation bar includes 'General Search', 'News', 'Companies', 'Industries', 'Countries', 'People', and 'US Public Records'. The 'News' tab is selected. The main search area contains three input fields for 'Search terms', each with a dropdown menu for location (currently set to 'Anywhere'). A dropdown menu for search operators is open, showing options: 'And', 'Or', 'Same Sentence', 'Same Paragraph', and 'Within 5 Words'. Below the search fields, there is an 'Add index terms' section with a 'Hide' button. This section is divided into 'Industry' and 'Subject' categories. The 'Industry' list includes 'All Industries' (checked), 'Aerospace & Defence', 'Automotive', and 'Banking & Finance'. The 'Subject' list includes 'All Subjects' (checked), 'Alliances & Partnerships', 'Antitrust', and 'Appointments'. There are also checkboxes for 'Exclude from search' for each category. On the left side, there are links for 'Related Searches', 'Power Search', 'Industry News', and 'Easy Search'. Below these, a section titled 'How do I...?' provides search tips. Two callout boxes with arrows point to specific parts of the interface: one points to the search fields and operator dropdown, and the other points to the 'Add index terms' section.

Enter your keywords into the search box. You can combine different keywords or phrases using operators from the drop down menu.

Adding index terms may help to find documents with a closer match to your topic.
