Student NHS Athens Accounts

As part of a national agreement, all medical students in England are entitled to an NHS Athens Account for the duration of their course. The resources available on a student account are those that have been purchased and made available nationally via NHS Evidence – for example BNF and The Lancet – but do not include resources acquired locally by the Strategic Health Authorities or local trusts. See www.evidence.nhs.uk/nhs-evidence-content/journals-and-databases

Sci59 Online - Specialty Choice Inventory

Developed by the Open University, Sci59 is a useful career development tool for early medical trainees and final year medical students. It matches an individual's personal and professional characteristics and aspirations to appropriate specialty choices and provides the user with suggestions for further research and information gathering.

Sci59 Online takes you through over a hundred questions about your preferred work settings, decision-making styles, comfort with uncertainty and so on. The process takes about fifteen minutes but you can stop at any time and go back to finish the questions later.

Username and password entitle you to 4 different submissions of the completed questionnaire. Usernames are available from hcl-enquiries@bodleian.ox.ac.uk.

If you are a member of the BMA you can also access Sci59 Online with your BMA login - details at www.bma.org.uk/ap.nsf/Content/Careersguidance

The Open University

Supporting Research

Our Subject Librarians and Outreach Librarians work across the Medical Sciences Division working in support of research activity - keeping researchers up to date with recent developments, supporting research bids, providing group and one-to-one training sessions and undertaking in-depth searches.

A good example of this activity is Tatjana Petrinic (Outreach Librarian for Anaesthetics and Theatres, Cardiac and Surgery) using her specialist searching and bibliographic skills to contribute to a systematic review undertaken by a group of NHS surgeons and University researchers.

Tatjana provided detailed advice and assistance with the development of the search strategy and undertook an in-depth search covering a large number of clinical databases.

Tatjana also provided follow up support, flagging up relevant new studies as they were published and ensuring that the group were also aware of on-going trials. The end result was a published paper in 2011 in the British Journal of Surgery for which Tatjana shared an author credit.
