Refugee Studies Collections

This LibGuide describes the Refugee Studies collections available at the Bodleian Social Science Library and relevant online resources.

The Library contains the collections of the former Refugee Studies Centre (RSC) Library and houses material supporting the research and teaching of the RSC. The collections cover the causes, experiences, and consequences of forced displacement and have an international coverage. Reflecting the multi-disciplinary nature of the study of forced migration, the Library actively collects materials covering psycho-social issues, human rights, refugee law, relief administration, anthropology, sociology, international affairs, education, health and nutrition.

The LibGuide for Displaced persons: human rights protection and legal resources provides a wealth of links via the Bodleian Law Library.

See the LibGuide Official Papers for Refugee Studies for information on the Official Papers held in the Bodleian Law Library and links to many other sources.

Governing refugees : justice, order and legal pluralism in the refugee camp by

Kirsten McConnachie

Call Number: KPT485.R43.MCC 2014

ISBN: 9780415834001

Publication Date: 2014

This book examines camp management and the administration of justice in refugee camps on the Thailand-Burma border. Emphasising the work of refugees themselves in coping with and adapting to encampment, it considers themes of agency, sovereignty and legal pluralism in an analysis of local governance and the production of order beyond the state.
