RSL August Bank Holiday closure

The RSL will be closed Saturday 25 August to Monday 27 August 2018 inclusive.

Open Access news

Bodleian iSkills: Open Access Oxford - What's Happening?

The next session of this regular briefing on Open Access Publishing and Oxford's position will be held:

- Monday 23 July, 12.30-1.30pm
- Group Study Room, Knowledge Centre, Old Road Campus

Booking and details at <https://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/workshops/OAO>.

Oxford's RCUK APC allocation policy finalised for 2018-19

On 1st July 2018 the University revised its policy for allocating funds from the RCUK Open Access block grant for Article Processing Charges (APCs) and article-related charges, in order to best manage the new grant which was greater than had been anticipated. It means we will now pay APCs for hybrid (subscription) journals with a 'green route' embargo longer than 6 months for science/medicine as well as for fully open access journals.

From now on authors should apply at the point of acceptance (instead of at article submission), which is the same timing as Wellcome Trust/COAF block grant and 'Act on Acceptance'. The APC team will advise if funds are available in our block grant and if the journal is eligible. Authors should in all cases deposit the accepted manuscript into ORA via Symplectic within 3 months of acceptance.

More information can be found at <http://openaccess.ox.ac.uk/2018/07/10/oxfords-rcuk-apc-allocation-policy-finalised-for-2018-19/>.

If you have any queries, please contact the OA Enquiry Team at openaccess@bodleian.ox.ac.uk.

40,000 full text items in ORA

Oxford's institutional repository (<https://ora.ox.ac.uk/>) now contains over 40,000 full text items: journal articles plus research theses, working papers, conference papers, book chapters, books and more. This means that more Oxford University research than ever before can be read in full for free by anyone in the world.

Our researchers also have many reasons to deposit:

- Increased visibility, discovery and dissemination of research
- Search engines include repository records prominently in their results, potentially yielding more readers and higher citations
- Preservation, archiving and persistent links
- Having a copy safely stored in ORA reduces the risk of lost files
- Policy - Universities and research funders want their research to be as widely available as possible
- Public engagement with research - Open access to research publications is an important strand

New databases listing

The OxLIP+ interface to the databases provided by the Bodleian Libraries has now been retired as the software used was no longer fully supported. A new A-Z Databases listing has now been launched as a replacement - this can be found at <https://libguides.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/az.php>.

Oxford Open Days

At the recent Oxford Open Days (27 and 28 June), the RSL welcomed and gave tours to 179 prospective students and 96 parents/guardians. Many thanks to staff for their hard work over the two days, and to readers for their patience while a constant stream of people walked through the library.

Green Impact news from the RSL

The RSL's Green Impact team was recently awarded a Silver Award at the 2018 Green Impact Showcase.

We were also awarded the Green Impact Innovation Award 2018 for our student internship project.

green impact

This involved appointing two Green Impact Micro-interns, Monika Papayova and Sarah Littlejohn, to produce a report and presentation exploring the many ways the RSL renovation can improve its environmental sustainability. Many thanks to Monika and Sarah for their excellent work. The report and presentation they produced can be found online at

Acland's Video Atlas of Human Anatomy

The Acland's Video Atlas of Anatomy (<http://aclandanatomy.com/>) will be available to members of the University from September 2018.

A presentation will be delivered on Friday 7 September 11am-12pm at the Radcliffe Science Library, Training Room, by an expert trainer of the Wolters Kluwer publishing company.

ACLAND'S VIDEO ATLAS OF HUMAN ANATOMY

It will be an opportunity to be talked through contents, features, compatibility on mobile devices, and learn how it is integrated into a teaching program. Please bring your device so that you can try during the session.

If you would like to attend, please, register through this link using your Single Sign-On at <https://tinyurl.com/aclandhumat>.

If you have any questions about the event please email karine.barker@bodleian.ox.ac.uk.

Please note: This is a resource of videos showing real human cadavers that some may find upsetting.
