

Google for academic research

Part 7: Replicating Google searches

Non-replicability of results

Replication of results using the same search, at different times, by different people, is not guaranteed

Google changes its algorithms several hundred times a year. Artificial intelligence is developing & improving Google's algorithm all the time

Google tests new ideas for improving search on live searchers by sending you to different versions of Google without you realising