

Transcript: Google for academic research – Using Google with your own research question

In the course of explaining how Google works, I have mentioned various tricks to try. Now is a good opportunity to work with your own research question to try out various tips and tricks within Google to help you narrow your results to those that will be academically useful for you.

Download the accompanying workbook and use this alongside re-watching the previous parts to try out these Google techniques to find academically relevant literature for your own research.