What is included?
Descriptions of archives and manuscript material created between c. 1500 and the 21st century. Material described is predominantly in manuscript form, but also includes photographic material, audiovisual items and born-digital content.

- Archives and manuscripts (post-1500) held in the Bodleian Libraries
- Medieval Manuscripts (see Medieval Manuscripts in Oxford Libraries)
- Manuscripts in oriental languages (see our LibGuide for Oriental Manuscripts)
- Administrative records of the University itself (see Oxford University Archives)

What am I searching?
- Full descriptions of all items catalogued after 2001
- Collection-level descriptions of most collections described in our published printed catalogues
- Full descriptions of some collections catalogued before 2001 are being added as they are digitised

This catalogue does not yet provide a comprehensive search of all holdings, but we are working towards this goal.

Biographical / Historical

The British and Foreign Anti-Slavery and Aborigines' Protection Society was formed in 1809 through the amalgamation of the two bodies that form its name.

The roots of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society go back to the 18th century, and the beginnings of a largely Quaker-inspired movement to abolish the slave trade. However, even after the abolition of the trade in Britain in 1807, and the emancipation of slaves in the colonies in 1834, an alternative form of slavery, the 'apprenticeship system' continued until 1838 in the West Indies. Against this background, in 1823, a number of men led by William Wilberforce and Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton began to meet regularly in London to discuss the slave trade and slavery in British possessions. The resulting organisation, the Committee on Slavery, later changed its name to The Society for the Abolition and Gradual Abolition of Slavery, and in 1835 to the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, committed to ending slavery worldwide. During the 19th century, the Society campaigned on a number of related issues, including the trade in slave-cultivated sugar from Brazil and Cuba, and the East African slave trade (resulting from its close contacts with Dr. Livingstone). In the 1890s its mandate began to include the ill-treatment of indigenous peoples, leading to its eventual merger with the Aborigines' Protection Society.

The Aborigines' Protection Society was founded in 1837 by Dr. Thomas Hodgson and others through a Parliamentary Select Committee set up in 1835 to investigate means of ensuring justice, 'spreading civilization', etc. among the indigenous peoples of the Empire. Its first president was Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, and its early work included the establishment of correspondence with 'intelligent and benevolent individuals abroad', the publication of several reports, including on the natives of Australia, Upper Canada and South Africa, and the general arousal of public opinion. For most of the 19th century it continued to lobby in the same geographical areas, as well as against encroachments on native American territory, the trafficking in labourers from Asia and Polynesia, and the sale of liquor to indigenous peoples.

After World War One the newly amalgamated British and Foreign Anti-Slavery and Aborigines' Protection Society attempted to work with the League of Nations to make the respect of human rights part of international law. This work culminated in 1926 with the Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery, which listed and defined all slave-related practices. In 1930 it campaigned for the setting up of a panel of experts in the United Nations; later known as the Working Group on Contemporary Forms of Slavery. In 1930 the Society changed its name to Anti-Slavery International. Its main current areas of interest include debt bondage, the trafficking of human beings and the worst forms of child labour.

In terms of related organisations relevant to this collection, the Mico Charity administered funds for the education of former slaves (though the legacy was not used for this purpose until after the establishment of the apprenticeship system in the West Indies and the subsequent setting up of schools for apprentices and their children); the National Federation of African Societies was in close communication with an American society of the same name established after the Civil War; and the Committee for the Welfare of Africans in Europe was formed during World War One to protect the welfare of native labour contingents in France and to care for native fighting forces.

Anti-Slavery International was formed in 1839 as the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society. Over the years the organisation's name has changed several times:

1. 1839-1900: The British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society
2. 1900-1947: The Anti-Slavery Society and Aborigines Protection Society
6. 1996-present: Anti-Slavery International

Immediate Source of Acquisition

The papers of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society and Aborigines Protection Society up to 1941 were purchased from the Society for the Bodleian Library by the Rhodes Trustees in 1951. It was agreed that the Library would have the right to acquire, at ten year intervals, the Society's papers of the previous decade. When the 1941-1951 accession was due to arrive a second payment was made to the Society to ensure that all of its papers to the end of the twentieth century would come to the Library.

With the Accessions 1941-1951 came the papers of Kathleen, Lady Simon, DBE, the wife of Sir John Simon, PC, GCVO. These papers had been deposited after her death on 27th March 1955 by her son, B. O'D. Manning, with the Anti-Slavery Society. When the Society's 1941-1951 papers were acquired by the Library Mr. Manning gave his mother's papers as an addition.

Related Materials

The Anti-Slavery Society Pictorial Collection is also held by the Bodleian Library. This comprises lantern slides and glass negatives mainly relating to Africa and dating from the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Hill, Sir Stephen John (1809–1891), colonial governor, born on 10 June 1809, was the son of Major William Hill and his wife, Sarah. He entered the army in 1823, became lieutenant in 1825, and was promoted captain in 1842. On 30 November 1829 he married Sarah Ann, the daughter of William Vesey Munnings, chief justice of the Bahamas. In 1849 he commanded an expedition which proceeded 80 miles up the River Gambia. On 6 May he stormed and destroyed the fortified town of Bambacoo, and on the following day attacked and partially destroyed the fortified town of Keenung; he also fought a successful action on the plains of Quenella. He commanded a detachment of the 2nd and 3rd West India regiments in a successful attack by the British and French naval and land forces under Commodore Fanshawe on the pirates of the island of Basse, on the Jebra River, west Africa. For this service he received the thanks of the lords of the Admiralty and the brevet rank of major.

No. 235 Letter from Mr. Samuel to Earl Curzon[^11] [E 3109/131/44]

Private and personal

ON BOARD S.S. 'HEلونAN', April 2, 1920[^24/2]

Dear Lord Curzon,

After two months in Palestine, I have now concluded my visit there. I received a fortnight ago from the Emir Feisal, whom I had met several times in London, a friendly invitation to go on to Damascus and to stay with him. On personal grounds I should have been glad to accept it, but at the present juncture I thought it inexpedient.

I have written a short report, addressed to Lord Allenby, on the administrative and financial matters relating to Palestine, on which he had invited me to advise. No doubt he will forward a copy to the Foreign Office.[^24/3] I have left with General Bols, the Chief Administrator, memoranda in greater detail on several specific points. This letter gives a summary of the conclusions I have formed on the political situation in Palestine, particularly with reference to the declarations of the Syrian Congress at Damascus on March 8th in favour of an independent and united Syria, to include Palestine, under the kingship of Faisal.

The movement in Palestine for its union with Syria springs from several sources.

It is absurd to suggest that the speech of the Colonial Secretary about the Indians in Kenya affords the slightest parallel to this (Montagu) incident. Upwards of 40 separate Crown Colonies are administered directly from the Colonial Office in regard to which a continued flow of decisions have to be given from month to month, and almost from day to day, of a purely departmental character. The case of the Indians in Kenya and their relations to the white settlers and to the native inhabitants of the country, who form of course the overwhelming majority, has always hitherto been dealt with by the Colonial Secretary of the day on his own responsibility without it having been considered necessary to invoke the aid of the Cabinet.

BRITISH ORDER IN COUNCIL, establishing Jurisdiction in the Uganda Protectorate.—London, August 11, 1902.

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 11th day of August, 1902.

PRESENT: THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS the territories of Africa situate within the limits of this Order are under the protection of His Majesty the King, and are known as the Uganda Protectorate;

And whereas by Treaty, grant, usage, sufferance, and other lawful means, His Majesty has power and jurisdiction within the said territories;

Now, therefore, His Majesty, by virtue and in exercise of the powers on this behalf by “The Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890,” or otherwise, in His Majesty vested, is pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:

SECRET
PRIORITY

431. For Ambassador from Secretary. Vice President Nixon reported to me that it would be most unfortunate if any impression was gained that U.S. was willing to trade recognition and admission to the UN of Communist China for a Korean political settlement. To combat such impression you may find it useful to recall part of what I said at my press conference of July 28.

“As far as I personally am concerned, I think I have made it clear I would not be prepared on behalf of the United States to try to buy the unity of Korea at the price of a concession which would involve bringing Communist China into the UN and, above all, into the Security Council.”

You can point out that this continues to be our policy and that my recent statement explaining why recognition of Red China is now not to be considered does not alter earlier statement in any way.

Sir:

I have the honor, in compliance with the Department's request of January 7, 1924 (file No. 862 - C.52/--), to transmit herewith translations of three of the newspaper clippings which I have kept in my study of the Japanese emigration problem during the past year. While not giving such direct information as was furnished with my confidential despatch No. 94 of December 5, 1923, they are nevertheless of interest as shedding a side-light on the organized emigration to the mandate islands of Japan and to the other islands in the Southern Pacific. Reference is made to pages 2 and 3 of my confidential despatch of November 13, 1923, entitled "Passport-Visa Procedure", as to the relation of

U.S.-Chilean Relations [Attached to Cover Memorandum Dated April 2, 1971 Entitled "Memorandum of Conversation with Chilean Ambassador"; Includes Distribution List]

DNSA collection: Chile and the United States

Ambassador Letelier referred to his meeting with Secretary Rogers and the President, noting that he had indicated to them that his Government is interested in having a high US official visit Chile. He noted that a US Air Force Delegation was visiting Chile at the present time.

Ambassador Letelier indicated that he has been trying to explain what the Chilean Government is and what it is trying to do. He noted that there were many misconceptions about Chile and a tendency to oversimplify by making analogies to other places. One aspect to which he referred was the Chileanization of copper.

The Ambassador noted the status of the constitutional amendment and indicated that the matter of the law would be finished in about two months. He felt the amendment was not too rigid.

14. Some people think the U.S. (United States) should support the United Nations in the efforts to prevent war there (between Israel and the Arab countries). Others think we should work with England and France outside the U.N. to try to keep peace there. Which of these two ways comes closest to your own point of view?

Archive of Malian Photography

https://amp.matrix.msu.edu/

Archive of Malian Photography provides access to preserved & digitized collections of five important photographers in Mali.

Since 2011, our collaborative team of US and Malian conservators has been cleaning, scanning, cataloging, and rehousing circa 100,000 photographic negatives from the archives of Mamadou Cissé, Adama Kouyaté, Abdourahmane Sekaly, Malick Sidibé, and Tijani Sitou for long-term preservation and access.

Spanning the 1940s-90s, this collection reveals changes and continuities in political and cultural practices, social trends, and photographic production in Mali during the twentieth century.

While these materials have undergone several review processes, additional revision is expected as the collection grows and distribution images are edited to reflect the original aesthetic. Please contact us if you notice duplications, inconsistencies, or inaccuracies.
