Highlights include the three Deck Plans (WM48 to WM50) are scarce versions that open up to a considerable size for the selection of cabins by prospective passengers. These examples are in near mint condition with no flaws other than in WM49, where the Travel Agent has put his imprint on the front of the fold. Other items of note includes WM1, a Proxy for an Extraordinary General Meeting in 1935, which was presumably to ratify aspects of the Cunard takeover of White Star; WM3 and WM5, very early White Star material; WM17, a detailed booklet of a 1907 trip on the Romanic to a Sunday School Teachers Conference in Rome (several pages have been scanned), including the original envelope; WM20, a 1909 Handbook of Information that even includes the standard meals for Second and Third class passengers during their entire crossing and included for its valuable content; and a WARNING about pickpockets (WM8) which even though sporting a small burn hole is an incredibly rare survivor and testament to one of the risks of ocean travel. These are only a few examples of a remarkable group of White Star Line ephemera.

Highlights include the three Deck Plans (WM48 to WM50) are scarce versions that open up to a considerable size for the selection of cabins by prospective passengers. These examples are in near mint condition with no flaws other than in WM49, where the Travel Agent has put his imprint on the front of the fold. Other items of note includes WM1, a Proxy for an Extraordinary General Meeting in 1935, which was presumably to ratify aspects of the Cunard takeover of White Star; WM3 and WM5, very early White Star material; WM17, a detailed booklet of a 1907 trip on the Romanic to a Sunday School Teachers Conference in Rome (several pages have been scanned), including the original envelope; WM20, a 1909 Handbook of Information that even includes the standard meals for Second and Third class passengers during their entire crossing and included for its valuable content; and a WARNING about pickpockets (WM8) which even though sporting a small burn hole is an incredibly rare survivor and testament to one of the risks of ocean travel. These are only a few examples of a remarkable group of White Star Line ephemera.

Other items of note includes WM1, a Proxy for an Extraordinary General Meeting in 1935, which was presumably to ratify aspects of the Cunard takeover of White Star; WM3 and WM5, very early White Star material; WM17, a detailed booklet of a 1907 trip on the Romanic to a Sunday School Teachers Conference in Rome (several pages have been scanned), including the original envelope; WM20, a 1909 Handbook of Information that even includes the standard meals for Second and Third class passengers during their entire crossing and included for its valuable content; and a WARNING about pickpockets (WM8) which even though sporting a small burn hole is an incredibly rare survivor and testament to one of the risks of ocean travel. These are only a few examples of a remarkable group of White Star Line ephemera.

Highlights include the three Deck Plans (WM48 to WM50) are scarce versions that open up to a considerable size for the selection of cabins by prospective passengers. These examples are in near mint condition with no flaws other than in WM49, where the Travel Agent has put his imprint on the front of the fold. Other items of note includes WM1, a Proxy for an Extraordinary General Meeting in 1935, which was presumably to ratify aspects of the Cunard takeover of White Star; WM3 and WM5, very early White Star material; WM17, a detailed booklet of a 1907 trip on the Romanic to a Sunday School Teachers Conference in Rome (several pages have been scanned), including the original envelope; WM20, a 1909 Handbook of Information that even includes the standard meals for Second and Third class passengers during their entire crossing and included for its valuable content; and a WARNING about pickpockets (WM8) which even though sporting a small burn hole is an incredibly rare survivor and testament to one of the risks of ocean travel. These are only a few examples of a remarkable group of White Star Line ephemera.

Sayers 297	White Star Postcards - Book 1	WSR1	Raphael Tuck Shipping Lists 2 pp	White Star Line				Bookseller's listing		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. Sayers 297	White Star Postcards - Book 1	#77	Canopic at Palermo H.L. & Co artist drawn Charles Dixon	White Star Line		Canopic		Postcard		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. Sayers 298	White Star Postcards - Book 2	#103	Ceramic Triple Screw Steamer - small type	White Star Line		Ceramic		Postcard		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

Sayers 298	White Star Postcards - Book 2	#129	Laurentic letter card	White Star Line		Laurentic			Postcard		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

Sayers 298	White Star Postcards - Book 2	#155	Megantic at Havana; artist signed Montague Black	White Star Line		Megantic		Postcard		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

Sayers 298	White Star Postcards - Book 2	#181	Regina & Doric 1933 message on back	White Star Line	1933	Regina	Doric	Postcard		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

Sayers 298	White Star Postcards - Book 2	#207	Vedic artist-drawn	White Star Line		Vedic		Postcard		207 White Star Line postcards all predating 1934. Housed in two binders. The listing is by ship, in alphabetic sequence, with the exception of the first two items which are generic advertising but quite scarce as ocean liner postcards. Includes an interesting selection of Real Photo ('RP') cards, with three of particular note #144, #145, and #146. All are fully identified and capture the flavour of the shipboard experience. The first two are very much, as I see it, in the style of Alfred Stieglitz' photograph titled 'The Steerage' which dates to only slightly earlier than these examples. Some of the images are prosaic, but others are quite special. The two views of the badly damaged Suevic are informative, and the photo of the immigrants on the Doric and the poignant note from a descendant that reports that his father later returned to England to live. Almost all of the White Star ships of the 20th Century are pictured at least once, and in some cases from several angles.

Sayers 300	Olympic & Britannic Postcards	OL1	Hoisting Funnel – Possibly a unique photographic image of one of the funnels being lowered in place on what an old note on the back says is the Olympic. An amazing and priceless photograph	White Star Line		Olympic		Postcard		A grouping of 70 postcards from the Olympic and Britannic (White Star Line) from the early part of the twentieth Century. As sister ship to the ill-fated Titanic, the Olympic has a strong collector following. Olympic was in service for almost a year before the Titanic made her fatal voyage. Olympic continued in service for some 24 years afterward as one of the premier ships of the White Star Line. Her interior design was almost identical to that of the Titanic since the two were expected to provide a two-ship service in competition with Cunard's Mauretania and Lusitania. Includes early images of the Olympic and her sister ship Britannic under construction in the binder of Ports and Shipyards postcards.

Sayers 304	World Cruise 1935	DC1	Cruise letter 1935 #1	Dollar Line	1935	President Van Buren		Letters		This material is from a 1935 World Cruise by two American women. It includes 58 pieces of ephemera; some is from on board, and some is not. Specifically, items DC1 to DC10 are a set of letters from a crew member who was working on a relationship with one of the women, Miss Carpenter. DC4A is the page with the map to the Radio Operator's room for a possible tryst with Miss Carpenter, as illustrated in John Sayers book. DC8 is apparently a note for a meeting with Miss Carpenter in June, after the cruise has ended and she is back in New York. A true onboard romance. DC11 to DC27 is a collection of pre-voyage Bon Voyage greetings. It is the most extensive grouping of this type of material in the Collection and confirms the extent to which friends were impressed by a World Cruise. There are greeting cards, telegrams, and personal notes. In addition, there are three Valentine cards. Mrs Clara L. Yauch and Miss Lillian M. Carpenter were sisters. Clara died 23/6/1964 (probably of cancer) (https://www.nytimes.com/1964/06/23/archives/obituary-1-no-title.html) As Lillian is still listed with her maiden name in the obituary, she clearly never married, certainly not Ralph G.

It includes 58 pieces of ephemera; some is from on board, and some is not. Specifically, items DC1 to DC10 are a set of letters from a crew member who was working on a relationship with one of the women, Miss Carpenter. DC4A is the page with the map to the Radio Operator's room for a possible tryst with Miss Carpenter, as illustrated in John Sayers book. DC8 is apparently a note for a meeting with Miss Carpenter in June, after the cruise has ended and she is back in New York. A true onboard romance. DC11 to DC27 is a collection of pre-voyage Bon Voyage greetings. It is the most extensive grouping of this type of material in the Collection and confirms the extent to which friends were impressed by a World Cruise. There are greeting cards, telegrams, and personal notes. In addition, there are three Valentine cards. Mrs Clara L. Yauch and Miss Lillian M. Carpenter were sisters. Clara died 23/6/1964 (probably of cancer) (https://www.nytimes.com/1964/06/23/archives/obituary-1-no-title.html) As Lillian is still listed with her maiden name in the obituary, she clearly never married, certainly not Ralph G.

Sayers 304	World Cruise 1935	DC31	Ship Newspaper Jan 12 1935 4pp	Dollar Line	1935	President Van Buren					This material is from a 1935 World Cruise by two American women. It includes 58 pieces of ephemera; some is from on board, and some is not. Specifically, items DC1 to DC10 are a set of letters from a crew member who was working on a relationship with one of the women, Miss Carpenter. DC4A is the page with the map to the Radio Operator's room for a possible tryst with Miss Carpenter, as illustrated in John Sayers book. DC8 is apparently a note for a meeting with Miss Carpenter in June, after the cruise has ended and she is back in New York. A true onboard romance. DC11 to DC27 is a collection of pre-voyage Bon Voyage greetings. It is the most extensive grouping of this type of material in the Collection and confirms the extent to which friends were impressed by a World Cruise. There are greeting cards, telegrams, and personal notes. In addition, there are three Valentine cards. Mrs Clara L. Yauch and Miss Lillian M. Carpenter were sisters. Clara died 23/6/1964 (probably of cancer) (https://www.nytimes.com/1964/06/23/archives/obituary-1-no-title.html) As Lillian is still listed with her maiden name in the obituary, she clearly never married, certainly not Ralph G.

Clara died 23/6/1964 (probably of cancer) (https://www.nytimes.com/1964/06/23/archives/obituary-1-no-title.html) As Lillian is still listed with her maiden name in the obituary, she clearly never married, certainly not Ralph G.

Sayers 304	World Cruise 1935	DC52	Laundry List - normal fold to fit in bag	Dollar Line	1935	President Van Buren		Laundry		This material is from a 1935 World Cruise by two American women. It includes 58 pieces of ephemera; some is from on board, and some is not. Specifically, items DC1 to DC10 are a set of letters from a crew member who was working on a relationship with one of the women, Miss Carpenter. DC4A is the page with the map to the Radio Operator's room for a possible tryst with Miss Carpenter, as illustrated in John Sayers book. DC8 is apparently a note for a meeting with Miss Carpenter in June, after the cruise has ended and she is back in New York. A true onboard romance. DC11 to DC27 is a collection of pre-voyage Bon Voyage greetings. It is the most extensive grouping of this type of material in the Collection and confirms the extent to which friends were impressed by a World Cruise. There are greeting cards, telegrams, and personal notes. In addition, there are three Valentine cards. Mrs Clara L. Yauch and Miss Lillian M. Carpenter were sisters. Sayers 309	Clark's cruises	CC1	1901 Glasgow Exposition 4pp - City of Rome	Clark's cruises	1901	City of Rome		Promotional material		A collection of 42 pieces of ephemera from Clark's Cruise. This material provides an important insight to the scope and activities of what appears to be America's pioneering cruise and tour organizer. According to the letterhead on a promotional letter, the first Frank C. Clark Cruise was on the Friesland in 1895. This collection, was accumulated by individual purchases over decades. As can be seen, Clark chartered ships and sold passages on them as his own cruises. In some brilliant marketing, he described them as Memberships in the promotional materials and even on the rare 1926 Payment Receipt, number CC31. The note of exclusivity was even maintained in menus such as CC34, a World Cruise Farewell Dinner. The shipping line was given little credit, with the emphasis being on the Tour Organizer. Documentation here shows that Clark sought groups such as Masonic organizations, where he could sell 'Memberships' to many people through one contact.

According to the letterhead on a promotional letter, the first Frank C. Clark Cruise was on the Friesland in 1895. This collection, was accumulated by individual purchases over decades. As can be seen, Clark chartered ships and sold passages on them as his own cruises. In some brilliant marketing, he described them as Memberships in the promotional materials and even on the rare 1926 Payment Receipt, number CC31. The note of exclusivity was even maintained in menus such as CC34, a World Cruise Farewell Dinner. The shipping line was given little credit, with the emphasis being on the Tour Organizer. Documentation here shows that Clark sought groups such as Masonic organizations, where he could sell 'Memberships' to many people through one contact.

Louise Welch was a 32-year-old female Boston attorney who in December, 1926, began a 5-month around-the-world cruise on the deluxe S.S. Belgenland of the Red Star Line. Every day she wrote to her love Thomas O'Connor, who remained in Boston - letters of description, letters of warmth, letters of affection, letters of suppressed passion. Every day her 'Tommie' wrote to her – letters of everyday gossip about Boston news and politicians, letters of tedium, letters of hope. Louise wrote graphic descriptions of all that she saw. Tommie was her 27-year-old counterpoint, waiting apprehensively in the depths of a Boston winter for the results of his Bar Admission examinations. Transcriptions of all letters are available. Louise and Tommie became engaged in 1928 and subsequently married.

Louise Welch was a 32-year-old female Boston attorney who in December, 1926, began a 5-month around-the-world cruise on the deluxe S.S. Belgenland of the Red Star Line. Every day she wrote to her love Thomas O'Connor, who remained in Boston - letters of description, letters of warmth, letters of affection, letters of suppressed passion. Every day her 'Tommie' wrote to her - letters of everyday gossip about Boston news and politicians, letters of tedium, letters of hope. Louise wrote graphic descriptions of all that she saw. Tommie was her 27-year-old counterpoint, waiting apprehensively in the depths of a Boston winter for the results of his Bar Admission examinations. Transcriptions of all letters are available. Louise and Tommie became engaged in 1928 and subsequently married.

Louise Welch was a 32-year-old female Boston attorney who in December, 1926, began a 5-month around-the-world cruise on the deluxe S.S. Belgenland of the Red Star Line. Every day she wrote to her love Thomas O'Connor, who remained in Boston - letters of description, letters of warmth, letters of affection, letters of suppressed passion. Every day her 'Tommie' wrote to her - letters of everyday gossip about Boston news and politicians, letters of tedium, letters of hope. Louise wrote graphic descriptions of all that she saw. Tommie was her 27-year-old counterpoint, waiting apprehensively in the depths of a Boston winter for the results of his Bar Admission examinations. Transcriptions of all letters are available. Louise and Tommie became engaged in 1928 and subsequently married.

Sayers 325	Catalin Corporation Havana Cruise	#1	Passenger list	Holland America Line	1940	Nieuw Amsterdam		Passenger lists	Catalin Corporation	This album documents a corporate cruise by the Catalin Corporation to Havana in 1940 on the new SS Nieuw Amsterdam of the Holland-America Line. This album is captioned throughout, with 7 captioned pages of ship ephemera including the Wine List, 2 pages of photos of the group at Rudy's Bar (with each of the participants named), 10 pages of mounted and captioned photos of life on board the ship, 7 pages of captioned photos of the group in Havana, and one page with 2 captioned photos of 'The Final Morning'. The 27 pages provide an important insight to the Cruise business in January 1940, while Europe was in the middle of 'The Phony War'. When Germany invaded Western Europe later in 1940, the cruising days of the Nieuwe Amsterdam were finished until the end of the War. When this album was purchased some 40 years ago, we knew nothing about the Catalin Corporation. Recently we learned that this is a significant cross-collectible, because the Catalin Corporation had acquired the patents for Bakelite in 1927. The product 'Catalin' is another type of plastic similar to Bakelite and with its acquisition of Bakelite in 1927, the Corporation

Sayers 325	Catalin Corporation Havana Cruise	#11	Photos of cabin	Holland America Line	1940	Nieuw Amsterdam		Photos	Catalin Corporation	This album documents a corporate cruise by the Catalin Corporation to Havana in 1940 on the new SS Nieuw Amsterdam of the Holland-America Line. This album is captioned throughout, with 7 captioned pages of ship ephemera including the Wine List, 2 pages of photos of the group at Rudy's Bar (with each of the participants named), 10 pages of mounted and captioned photos of life on board the ship, 7 pages of captioned photos of the group in Havana, and one page with 2 captioned photos of 'The Final Morning'. The 27 pages provide an important insight to the Cruise business in January 1940, while Europe was in the middle of 'The Phony War'. When Germany invaded Western Europe later in 1940, the cruising days of the Nieuwe Amsterdam were finished until the end of the War. When this album was purchased some 40 years ago, we knew nothing about the Catalin Corporation. Recently we learned that this is a significant cross-collectible, because the Catalin Corporation had acquired the patents for Bakelite in 1927. The product 'Catalin' is another type of plastic similar to Bakelite and with its acquisition of Bakelite in 1927, the Corporation

Sayers 332*	Queen Mary Autograph Album		The initial Autograph Album or Guest Book for the RMS Queen Mary covering the period from 1936-1939. Quarto. Bound book including 383 signatures of the passengers on board the vessel. They include notables such as Mary Pickford, Gary Cooper, William Randolph Hearst, Lionel Barrymore, Irene Dunne, Joan Bennett, Marion Davies, ZaSu Pitts, Rudolf Serkin, Beaverbrook, Delores del Rio, Gary Cooper and Arturo Toscanini.	Cunard	1936-1939	Queen Mary					Beyond these and other stars of stage and screen and the numerous political and social influencers also on board. A few others of note include: [Lord] Sutherland, Merle Oberon, [Lord] Beatty, Leo Chertok, Peter Fleming, Lloyd Corrigan, Joe E. Brown, Randolph S. Churchill, Noel Coward, Rod La Rocque, Johnny Weissmuller, Hugh Walpole, J. P. Morgan, Gracie Fields, Fred Perry, James Montgomery Flagg, Leslie Howard, J. B. Priestley, Robert Taylor, Tommy Farr, H. G. Wells, Louis Mountbatten, Edwina Mountbatten, Eddie Cantor, Spencer Tracy, A J. Cronin, Douglas Fairbanks. A one of a kind item with great significance in the worlds of ocean liner, autograph, movie star collectors and scholars with an interest in social history.
Sayers 333	Aurania & Athenia Photograph Album		Photograph album of the trip the Gibson and Van Vliet families took to Europe		1931?	Aurania	Athenia	Photos			The album provides a photographic record of the Van Vliet and the Gibson families en route to Europe in the 1930s on the RMS Aurania (in service 1924-1939). There are some further photos during the return trip on board the RMS Athenia (in service 1923-1939). There are good images of various facets of shipboard life including shuffleboard and other pastimes. The outfits worn by the subjects who are photographed are also of interest as representative of the attire worn on shipboard at that time. The book also came, when acquired many years ago, with a delightful period baggage tag picturing the RMS Mauretania. If the printing code C316 is a date code, the tag would date the material to mid-1931.

Sayers 334	T.S.S. Calgarian		T.S.S. Calgarian: First class passenger list; wireless telegraph rates; Daily News (5 issues)	Allan Line	1914	Calgarian		Passenger lists	Newspaper		24 days after the declaration of war, the Calgarian set off as if nothing had changed for what must have been its last round trip as a civilian liner. Built for the Atlantic run, its maiden voyage was on May 8th 1914 and on the 15 September 1914 it was requisitioned as an armoured merchant cruiser and used for troop carrying and blockade work. Still in war service on 1 March 1918 it was torpedoed and sunk off Northern Ireland by a U-Boat.

Sayers 353	North German Lloyd Archive	#1	Invitation from Captain for cocktail party to Alina Kiessling (with envelope)	North German Lloyd	1938	Columbus		Invitation		Less than a year before the German invasionh of Poland in 1939, the North German Lloyd Line was offering cruises to Americans. This October 1938 cruise, from new York, on the S.S. Columbus, was clearly targeting American travellers. As a souvenir of the cruise to the West Indies, passengers would have sought menus. The answer was for the ship to provide them with a special folio such as this one. The Columbus was on another cruise when war broke out in 1939. After disembarking the cruise passengers in Cuba, the crew scuttled the ship to avoid having it fall into the hands of the British navy.

United States, book no. 10; 147 pages		1952	United States		Inventory		Amazing pieces of Americana from America's greatest liner and the winner of the Blue Riband. The other books from the complete set were sold in lots to other bidders at the auction, and are likely to be widely dispersed. They are not listed in the auction catalogue and the auctioneer stated that they were found in a closet on the ship. Believed to be part of a that the set consisted of 20 books which were an inventory of all the furnishings aboard the ship when she was delivered to the United States Line by the builder in March, 1952. These are books 10, 11, and 12 which were sold as a lot. This Allowance List sets out part of the furnishings for which the Steward's Department was responsible, and provides a record of the inventory count to confirm that the quantity listed was actually on hand.

The other books from the complete set were sold in lots to other bidders at the auction, and are likely to be widely dispersed. They are not listed in the auction catalogue and the auctioneer stated that they were found in a closet on the ship. Believed to be part of a that the set consisted of 20 books which were an inventory of all the furnishings aboard the ship when she was delivered to the United States Line by the builder in March, 1952. These are books 10, 11, and 12 which were sold as a lot. This Allowance List sets out part of the furnishings for which the Steward's Department was responsible, and provides a record of the inventory count to confirm that the quantity listed was actually on hand.

Sayers 358	USS Great Northern	#1	1918 - Christmas Dance card; with pencil		1918	Great Northern		Dance card			This archive of material from the United States Troop Transport Great Northern in the 1918-19 afterwar period is unique in its scope and quality of content. Unlike individual pieces of ephemera obtained by soldiers on their way home across the Atlantic, this broad range of ephemera came from a member of the crew. The name of the crew member, G.W. Stevenson, is on a Pass framed in a metal carrying holder. Then, there is a Christmas, 1918 Dance Card, with the title page describing entertainment by a Jazz Band from Cornell University. It's not clear where the women were that the crew might have danced with, but it was likely in port in the United States – perhaps Hoboken, New Jersey, as shown on a wonderful framed group photo of December 1918 picturing the officers and crew of the Great Northern.

Eastward leaving New York, Oct. 16th 1909) Apparently the First Cruise Around the World was originally scheduled for 1909 aboard the SS Arabic of the White Star Line. In service from 1903, the Arabic had sailed on other cruises for Clark, the cruise organizer. At some stage – presumably well along because this is a large booklet of 72 pages including illustrations of Arabic's interiors – the vessel was changed to the Cleveland. The Cleveland of the Hamburg-America Line was new in 1909, but we can only speculate on the reason for the change of not only the ship but also the shipping line.	Hamburg America Line	1909	Cleveland	Arabic	Around the world cruise

Sayers 365	2023-1 Addendum	WC13	Belgenland foldover; 1926-1927	Red Star Line	1926-1927	Belgenland					World and Other Cruises -This material extends the Clark's World Cruise passenger lists by adding 1926 and 1927 (WC1 and WC2). Of particular significance is the flyer for an 1898 World Cruise (WC4) and a reprint of an advertisement promoting a 1904 World Cruise. The booklet was tucked into an 1897 booklet promoting the Hamburg America Line (WC8). They suggest that the Line had been unsuccessful in promoting the venture until they teamed up with the Clark business. There are other Passenger Lists, including one heavily annotated with pencilled comments about some of the passengers.
